Notes

¹ Qualifying home – a qualifying home is a housing unit located in Canada. This includes existing homes and those being constructed. Single-family homes, semi-detached homes, townhouses, mobile homes, condominium units, and apartments in duplexes, triplexes, fourplexes, or apartment buildings all qualify. A share in a co-operative housing corporation that entitles you to possess, and gives you an equity interest in a housing unit located in Canada, also qualifies. However, a share that only provides you with a right to tenancy in the housing unit does not qualify. For condominium units, you are considered to own the unit the day you are entitled to immediate vacant possession of it.

² Written agreement – a written agreement must include the date the agreement was signed, the address of the qualifying home and the closing date.

³ Specified disabled person – in respect of an individual, is a person who is the individual or who is related to the individual, where the person either:

- is entitled to the disability amount (line 31600 of their income tax and benefit return) at the time of the HBP withdrawal
- would have been entitled to the disability amount if they had not claimed costs for an attendant or for care in a nursing home as medical expenses

If the person was not entitled to the disability amount for any year before the HBP withdrawal, but a Form T2201, Disability Tax Credit Certificate, certified by a medical practitioner, is filed for the person for the year of the HBP withdrawal, the person will be treated as if they are entitled to the disability amount. If Form T2201 is not approved, your withdrawals will not be considered eligible withdrawals under the HBP, and will have to be included in your income for the year you receive them.
